Having previously created a vision for her own home & garden store, Kelly appreciates the hands on connection that comes from working with a client in selecting elements which provide just the right fit. Kelly strives not just for good design, but rather successful design that is tailored to each individual client. With over 10 years of experience, Kelly believes that by listening to the client, assembling the relevant team of experts, and embarking on a collaborative project, a leap is made from good design to exceptional design. For Kelly, the victory comes in walking away from a project where the client can occupy their space, content with both the form and function.

At the very heart of interior design lies challenge: The challenge to find “THE” solution for each Client, be it big or small. Working as a Senior Designer at Corporate Design Group, Inc. allows me the opportunity to meet challenges head-on, and to experience all aspects of our ever-changing field. Each day brings room for growth and improvement, as projects are never the same twice.

Although a large concentration of my practice focuses on Tenant Improvement projects, I strive to touch and take part in as many aspects of the interior design process as possible. The scenarios, challenges, and solutions are limitless. For me, this is the attraction of the interior design profession. Each project along with its circumstances, requirements, and team is always unique, thus inherently so is each outcome.

It is my goal to assemble carefully crafted teams of industry experts to partner with, be they within our firm or external resources. Creating projects out of a collaborative effort ensures the finest outcome possible. In sharing knowledge and drawing from the expertise of others, not only does the team benefit, but most importantly the Client benefits. ■
